Your Mission is Your Talent and it is Known by Your Soul

Have you said to yourself, “Who am I.” or “What is my talent?” or “What is my mission in life?” or “What is my purpose in life?”

If you have the question, the answer cannot be far behind.

So what stops us from expressing our talents, knowing our talents: completing our missions?

The ego-personalities are a blockage to us all.

1. They are a blockage to discovering your life’s mission—your talents and your purpose in life.
2. And then after discovering your life mission, the ego-personalities of other people become the obstacle to completing your life mission.

We all must get rid of our own ego in order to express our talents, complete our missions and fulfill our purposes in life.

And then we must separate ourselves from the egos of others and surround ourselves with people who understand and support us. We must support each other in being the soul—fulfilling our missions.

Your mission is known by your soul. It is what you have to give to others. It is something you love to do and your life experiences have prepared you to do it. So what is it that you have to give to others? It is your talent.

Talents are that which you do with:

1. Your voice: singing or speaking, teaching
  2. Your ears: evaluating and making corrections
  3. Your hands and arms: building, creating, making, writing, painting, drawing, helping others
  4. Your feet and legs: entertainment, service to others
  5. Your mind: coming up with a new creation, invention, inspiration
- Is it your singing voice that inspires love in the hearts of people?
  - Is it your speaking voice that inspires people to greatness; inspires people to go on under duress; inspires people to heal from the past that they may live in the present?
  - Is it your ability to write inspiring tales that people may learn from them how to live and how not to live?
  - Is it your ability to design homes, interiors, cars, boats, buildings, rooms, hotels, office buildings that make people happy to work on their talents when they are in your creation?
  - Is it your ability to defend the innocent against tyranny in a court room?
  - Is it your ability to design clothes, cut and style hair, give people relax time while getting a massage, nails trimmed and polished, or facials?
  - Is it your ability to be a mother or a father that helps children grow up to complete their divine plans, express their talents grow and develop as the soul?
  - Are you a teacher who inspires students to greater heights of development and expression of their talents. Are you a teacher who trains souls in how to do their talents thus helping them fulfill their life work—their life mission?
  - Are you a cook that feeds people that they may have the energy to go forth to accomplish their divine mission in life?
  - Are you a counselor who helps people get over their negative past that each one may go forward in life to get back on the road to accomplishing his or her mission in life?
  - Are you a builder who takes the talent of the designer and builds the building, cuts and sews the garments, repairs the creation when it needs it?
  - Are you a promoter, one who promotes other people's talents and helps them complete their missions?

You see we are all in this mission together. We help each other complete our missions by supporting each other, helping each other, teaching each other. We give to each other and we take from each other.

- If no one buys the shoemaker's shoes, his or her mission is stopped.
- If no one buys the dressmaker's clothes, his or her mission is stopped.
- If no one buys the authors books his or her mission is stopped.
- If no one buys the homes that the architects, the contractors, the carpenters, the plumbers, the electricians, the painters, the cabinet makers, the lumber yard, the lumberjacks, the truckers, the nail manufacturers, the paint manufacturers, mail delivery, the factories and all of their employees, the assemblers of dry wall and all of the fittings, brackets, braces, and everything that goes into building your house—if no one buys it then all of these people's purposes in life are stopped!

Now if your mission depends on having a suit to wear, special walking shoes, or hats; a roof over your head, books to teach you and inspire you, all that you use in your daily living from water, electricity, phones, toilets—and they are not available to you—your mission is stopped.

We cannot complete our missions in life without the support of each other.

Giving and receiving are what we need in order to find and complete our missions in life. The secret to giving and receiving is this.

1. The one who has something to give must find the one who will receive or the giving stops for lack of receiving and giving. The mission is stopped.
2. The one who needs to receive must have something to give or the receiving stops—the receiving comes from the giving.
3. In the giving is the receiving and in the receiving is the giving.

Both the giver and the receiver give and receive; and in that giving and receiving the circle of life is fulfilled.

So what do you have to give?

1. A question is something given; an answer is something received. Pray for inspiration to know what your purpose is: what your mission is.
2. A need when expressed allows a response: something given. To which the needy one must give in return: a thank you or a small payment or service to the giver—something exchanged.

If you do not allow the needy one to give back when you give, you have stopped the giving and receiving which is the basis for expressing our talents and completing our missions. Bartering is a good way to exchange talents when money cannot be exchanged. We must all help each other in expressing our talents.

Give when you receive; and when you give—receive in return.

Does nature not fulfill its destiny? Does not the lake provide a home and food for the fish and the plant life? Without the rain the lake would dry up and the fish would die. Nature gives and receives. Does not the forest provide the food and home for the animals? And without the plant life would not the animals die? Does not the cow and the hen provide food for our table and in doing so do we not have a job caring for the animals who feed us? Life gives onto life and life receives in return.

What happens when you read this class and all of the 47 others? You are receiving. I am giving.

If my mission is to help your souls gain freedom from the bondage of the ego-personalities then what is your mission? Part of your mission is to give to me.

We can keep this class going only if I am receiving too--receiving book sales, donations and also receiving your help in increasing the number of readers. That is why I made this class open to your giving. That is why we put up a donation button at <http://www.broqueville.com>

Someone emailed me and asked me if this was my hobby. No it is not my hobby.

This is my life work. It is my divine plan and it is my purpose in life.

Unraveling Your Past to Get Into the Present, teaches your soul how to grow up as the soul; this is the fastest way to get rid of your ego-personalities. This book is not this class; this class has only been an explanation of the ego-personalities—a clarification—to clear up the misleading teachings that you may have learned. This class has been the background behind Unraveling Your Past to Get Into the Present.

Remember the only way to complete your divine plan—your purpose—your mission in life is if you do something, use your talent—pray for inspiration from God—and support others in completing their missions. If someone is down on his or her luck—help him to get back on his feet—teach him a trade—for with a trade he or she will be able to go forward to complete his or her mission too, just like you.
